

Introducing www.uageneralagency.com

Have you ever been lost in cyberspace, clicking around here and there in search of information? Now-a-days it seems you need more than just a manual and a mouse to navigate the World Wide Web. At United American, we understand that not all Web sites are created equal; that is why we have just made your life, as a General Agent, much easier. We have added an additional site to the unitedamerican.com family. This site caters specifically to you, the General Agent. It will serve two purposes: One, it will create an online community for United American's General Agents, and two, it will serve to recruit new General Agents (recruits will be linked directly from unitedamerican.com). Below are some of the features this new site has available.

This online community will provide you with all kinds of information, including:

- A library of UA News, going as far back as January 1999
- UA's Product Guide and links to current approval charts
- UA Underwriting Guidelines
- Agent Guidelines which provide information on Agent conduct, new business, advertising, commissions and frequently asked questions
- Frequently used forms which may be viewed, printed or downloaded directly to your computer
- An online service center, where Agents can submit questions or comments to the UA Agency Teleco Department (questions will be answered via e-mail, and depending on the complexity of the inquiry, can be answered in a relatively short time frame)
- Links to the 2001 Sales Conference Web site

When you need answers, and you need them fast, visit www.uageneralagency.com